

In life, there are many doorways. These doorways are opportunities to step to a higher level of understanding or expansion. There is no way to know what's on the other side. You must pass through without knowing how your life will change.

If there is somewhere in your life you're longing for change, ask for the doorway to be shown to you. If you're passing through one of those doorways, know that you're ready for the change it represents. Doorways only open when we're ready to walk through them. Acknowledge your willingness to step through by saying,

"I'm ready for whatever Life has to offer. I trust the divine plan."
